

Are You a Service Organization in Finance or Insurance Looking to Adopt Lean?

EMS Consulting Group is a management consulting firm designed to create value for manufacturers, service providers, and product developers. Our clients include organizations from the medical device, biotech, aerospace, defense, and consumer products industries. Providing lean manufacturing training and lean manufacturing consulting services; we help our clients achieve lower costs, improved productivity and quality, and decreased time-to-market.

Case Study

The Problem: A major insurance company in the Los Angeles area was in the process of adopting lean processes due to a corporate mandate. They needed local training for several key employees.

The Solution: 1 key employee was trained in EMS Consulting Group's Lean Office Certificate program off-site, while EMS developed and presented a customized lean training program to several key employees.

The Results: The organization emerged as the exemplary model for continuous improvement within the corporation. It was able to take the training from EMS and make it part of the corporate training program for lean six sigma.

What do our clients say?

"(EMS Consulting Group Sr. Partner) Darren Dolcemascolo did a great job helping us develop and execute a plan to integrate Lean Manufacturing / Operational Excellence into our culture. He worked extremely well with Gen-Probe team, training people from multiple sites around the globe in Lean Tools and Techniques, and was instrumental in ensuring that we had the skills to move forward on our own. I would highly recommend him to an organization who needs a Lean educator and coach." - Jorgine Ellerbrock, Sr. Vice President, Operations, Gen-Probe Incorporated

"I've used EMS to implement Lean concepts at two different companies and they have always provided exceptional service. They supported my companies by conducting Lean evaluations, train-the-trainer, general employee training, implementation of 5s, and facilitating Kaizen events (both manufacturing and service). What makes them unique is that they are willing to tailor their Lean approach and material to any company or situation. It's not your typical "canned-Lean presentation" and, unlike several Lean consultants, they do not pressure for additional work. EMS will only provide the services that you need to be successful. They have never disappointed to provide results." - Kermit Stott, Sr. Vice President, Operations, Alphatec Spine